Nyon, July 2012

UEFA EURO 2012™, the first major football tournament organized in eastern Europe, has been a great accomplishment and we would like to thank EXPO XXI for their cooperation in the event.

As a provider of exhibition halls and facilities for the construction and operation of the International Broadcast Centre of UEFA EURO 2012™, EXPO XXI contributed to the outstanding success of the tournament.

The International Broadcast Centre was the temporary broadcasting hub of the tournament, housing studios, technical areas and offices to manage the production and distribution of the international television signal for each match, the content and management of the euro2012.com website, as well as the provision of information technology services to the entire European football family during the event.

On behalf of UEFA, we would like to express our sincere gratitude for your commitment and professionalism.

Best wishes for the future to you and your team!
